The total of 301 years at this point is confirmed by Jephtha. Thus, two-thirds through the judges, God confirms that our process is correct. In 11:26 Jephtha points out that Israel had had Ammon's land for 300 years before Ammon tried to recover it. It was in this year (301st) (see 10:8) that Ammon began his oppression. (See also 11:12, 13.)

Samson's judgeship coincided with the last 20 years of this and will not be counted separately (See 15:20; 16:30, 31.)

(See also 1:9) Samuel's judgeship follows Eli's and has strange limits (see 7:15 - but he died well into the period of the kings - 25:1); but his final recorded act of deliverance of Israel restored the ark (See 5:1 and 7:2.)

The period of Judges is apparently reckoned as having ended here. (See also 8:5; 6:1; 4:18; 7:14.)

Note: The account of 8:1 is not additional judges, but deputies. (Deuteronomy 16:18; I Samuel 8:5)
